

Dealing with environmental regulatory compliance shouldn't be like a roll of the dice. One mistake can have serious consequences for the environment, your business, and you. This is compounded by the fact that few of us are environmental experts and that regulations are complex and prone to frequent changes. Just making certain that all the right forms and documentation are submitted correctly and on time can be a real challenge, and costly.

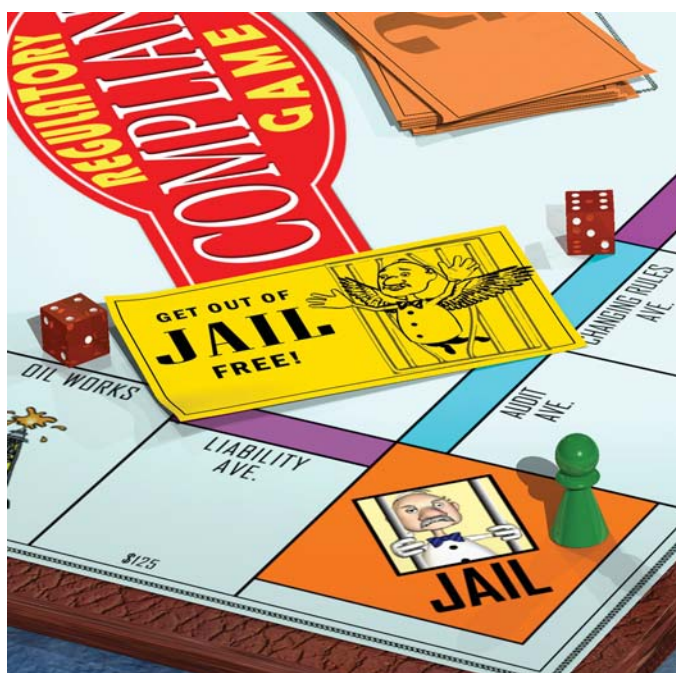

Missed deadlines, unchecked deviations, lack of corrective action, and reporting errors and omissions cost your organization time and money. For example:

- The compliance manual is out of date because it is just too complicated and time consuming to keep current
- Documents required for audits are scattered in multiple computers and files
- Failure to complete a required compliance task can go unnoticed until the due date has passed

How can you improve compliance with environmental regulations without taking up everyone's time and busting the IT budget?

ComplianceSentry is a cost-effective solution – built on a suite of Web-based tools – that helps you take control of compliance management. The toolset simplifies your compliance efforts by helping you determine regulatory applicability, track changes in regulations, establish a system of e-mail task notifications and accountability, prepare and submit required reports and permits, and document the entire process.

A Better Way

ComplianceSentry incorporates both people and software by providing a hosted suite of proven and patent-pending solutions that automate much of the process associated with achieving, maintaining and proving EH&S regulatory compliance. As a Web-based toolset, it is always available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

ComplianceSentry:

- Regulatory tracking ensures that regulations are always current
- Identifies compliance requirements
- E-mail based task generation system delivers notifications to responsible parties
- Perpetual Audit™ provides methodology and audit tools to ensure that no detail is overlooked

ComplianceSentry allows you to stop worrying about compliance, permits, and paperwork and allows you to focus on the day-to-day aspects of running your business. You don't have to spend time trying to learn new regulations or a compliance system. You can concentrate on achieving and maintaining compliance. This renewed focus delivers immediate improvements in compliance while decreasing your risk of noncompliance liability.
